Smooth, shining, healthy skin and hair certainly count for a beautiful woman or handsome man. Numerous toxins, microorganisms, chemicals, pollutants, etc. present in atmosphere cause damage to skin & hair. Cosmetics alone are not sufficient to take care of skin and body parts, it requires association of Herbal active ingredients to check the damage and ageing of the skin. Herbal cosmetics are now emerged as the appropriate solution to the current problem. Personal care industry is currently more concentrated on herbal cosmetics as now-a-days it is a fast-growing segment with a vast scope of manifold expansion in coming years. Herbal cosmetics are the preparations, which represent cosmetics associated with active bio-ingredients, nutraceuticals, or pharmaceuticals. The use of bioactive phytochemicals from a variety of botanicals has dual function, (i) they serve as cosmetics for the care of body and its parts and (ii) the botanical ingredients present therein influence biological functions and provide nutrients necessary for the healthy skin / hair or related body parts. As a whole, botanicals provide different vitamins, antioxidants, various oils, essential oils, hydrocolloids, proteins, terpenoids and other bioactive molecules.

A vast biodiversity and different climatic conditions of India provide a variety of botanicals, which can be used in the formulations. Our traditional knowledge about the use of plant wealth as described in Ayurveda, Siddha, Unani, and Tibetan system of medicine, is of great help to identify the phytochemicals for skin and body care preparations. Determined attempts are required to associate the modern cosmetology with bioactive ingredients based on our traditional system of medicine leading to emergence of novel cosmeceuticals for skin and body care.
